17 Partnerships for the Goals

International Educational Partnerships

The National Aerospace University “Kharkiv Aviation Institute” actively develops international cooperation in the fields of education, science, and innovation.

The University participates in leading European Union programs - Erasmus+, Jean Monnet, and Horizon Europe - which promote the development of innovative educational practices, sustainable governance, digital transformation, and European values.

Partnerships with universities in the European Union, the United Kingdom, Canada, Japan, and the Balkan countries provide opportunities for academic mobility of students and faculty, joint research projects, international conferences, and publications.

The establishment of networked educational programs and dual-degree programs ensures KhAI's integration into the European Higher Education Area and enhances the global competitiveness of Ukrainian higher education.

Partnership with Industry and Business

The National Aerospace University “Kharkiv Aviation Institute” (KhAI) is a reliable partner for industry in creating an innovative ecosystem that integrates education, science, and production.

KhAI actively develops tripartite alliances - “university-business-government”- which promote the commercialization of scientific research, the development of technological entrepreneurship, and the creation of new job opportunities.

Among the key partners are Antonov, Motor Sich, FED, Turboatom, Kharkiv IT Cluster, Style Avia Group, and Boeing, with whom KhAI implements joint research, educational, and engineering projects.

The university hosts corporate laboratories, startup incubators, and R&D centers where students, researchers, and engineers work on real technical challenges, gaining hands-on experience in applying innovations within the industry.

Social and Humanitarian Partnerships

The National Aerospace University “Kharkiv Aviation Institute” (KhAI) actively develops social initiatives and international humanitarian partnerships aimed at supporting individuals and communities affected by the war.

KhAI collaborates with UN Women, USAID, the British Council, DAAD, and the Polish National Agency for Academic Exchange to implement projects focused on gender equality, inclusion, digital transformation, and social resilience.

The University, in collaboration with non-governmental organizations and local communities, implements support programs for veterans, children, internally displaced persons, and families affected by the war, providing them with access to education, psychological assistance, and professional development.

Acting as a mediator between the academic community, authorities, and society, KhAI contributes to strengthening the region’s social capital and fostering a culture of solidarity, trust, and humanitarian values within Ukrainian society.
