Program of PhD in Economics of National Aerospace University named by M. Zhukovskyy “Kharkiv Aviation institute” combines the competence in order to provide advanced education in all fields of Economics. By this program, the doctoral students benefit from a large variety of courses and methods.

This PhD program prepares students to conduct cutting-edge original research addressing the actual economic questions of our time, learn the skills of leading economists, choose from specializations, and develop own research program.

The Program combines two years of coursework with independent research period guided by faculty members. The main objective of Program, though, is to help y develop own research agenda as quickly as possible and get working graduates students on full time. Students will gradually transit from taking courses to conducting independent research present and get feedback on own research ideas.

We consider this program as a innovative and recommend to provide it in educational activity.
